LIVE SURGICAL DEMONSTRATIONS ($7,500)

The International Sports Medicine Fellows Conference includes a series of live surgical demonstrations designed to enhance the educational experience of participating fellows. These sessions feature faculty surgeons performing procedures in real time, illustrating surgical techniques, instrumentation use, and clinical considerations relevant to sports medicine practice.

Industry sponsors support the logistical components of these demonstrations, ensuring fellows have access to high-quality, hands-on educational content. Sponsorship does not dictate program curriculum, faculty selection, or educational outcomes. All demonstrations are planned and led by ISMF faculty in accordance with established educational objectives.

Surgical demonstrations are 15-20 minutes and include registration for 2 additional industry personnel. The program committee reviews the "Areas of Interest" identified on the Exhibit and Sponsorship Form, to ensure the integrity of the educational program is maintained. Sponsors are recognized in the Agenda (online and printed). Sponsors are also recognized for their cumulative support.

HANDS-ON WORKSHOP

The ISMF Conference proudly offers one of the most robust hands-on training experiences in sports medicine education—a 25–30 station cadaveric workshop made possible through the generous in-kind support of our industry partners. Each station has 2–3 fellows and 1–2 faculty surgeon, creating an immersive, small-group learning environment that supports real-time guidance, individualized feedback, and meaningful skill development.

Industry support is essential to delivering a workshop of this scale and caliber. Companies that provide equipment benefit from unparalleled visibility and interaction with future sports medicine surgeons and established faculty leaders. By supplying arthroscopic towers, instrumentation systems, implants, and specialty tools, partners:

- Increase familiarity with their products and instrumentation among fellows at a formative stage in their careers.
- Build relationships with fellows and faculty, fostering trust and preference as these surgeons progress into independent practice.
- Showcase the performance and usability of their systems in a real surgical environment, allowing participants to experience key differentiators firsthand.
- Gain expanded exposure through additional stations—the more towers and equipment a company provides, the greater the educational footprint and visibility during this high-engagement session.

Equipment and Instrumentation (In-Kind)

Industry partners typically support the workshop through in-kind provision of essential equipment.

- Arthroscopic towers (scope, video, shaver, pump, coblation, suction, specimen trays, tubing, power drills/saws, arthroscopic instruments)
- General instrumentation (snaps, scissors, retractors, etc.)
- Meniscal repair instrumentation and devices
- Meniscal transplantation instrumentation
- Microfracture instrumentation
- Osteochondral autograft instrumentation
- Osteochondral allograft instrumentation
- Patella stabilization (MPFL/MQTFL) systems
- Distal femoral osteotomy systems
- High tibial osteotomy systems
- Tibial tubercle osteotomy systems
- Additional instrumentation relevant to conference topics

Workshop Station ($4,000)

Industry partners without the ability to provide in-kind support for workshop stations are able to put products directly into the hands of fellows and faculty by sponsoring a station dedicated to their product.

Check-out Station ($1,500)

Give fellows and faculty hands-on access to your instruments and technologies, allowing them to explore, evaluate, and engage directly with your products in a practical, education-focused setting.
